Collection Exhibit I
“Hirogaru” Japanese Paintings – unfolding,
expanding and growing

4F Exhibition Space

*Items on exhibit will be switched during the exhibition period. Events including gallery talks will be held.

YOKOO Hogetsu, Princess Chacha, 1927, Collection of the Fukuoka Prefectural Museum of Art.

When you enjoy a Japanese-style painting drawing on screen or scroll, you look at it with unfolding them. As time has passed, many Japanese-style paintings have been drawn on canvases, and the size of them have been expanding. Then, the expression of them have transformed and been growing with Japanese-style painters and Western-style painters have inspired each other. This exhibition shows you some of our collection of Japanese-style paintings on the theme of “Hirogaru”, which means unfolding, expanding and growing in Japanese.

Held during the same period

Sub exhibition: “Hirogaru” Collection – Exhibition of new acquisitions
Newly acquired works through donations and purchases will be displayed. See how the museum's collection is growing.

The 130th Anniversary of the Birth Exhibition
KOJIMA Zenzaburo

4F Exhibition Space

*Lecture and gallery talks will be held.

KOJIMA Zenzaburo, East Wind, 1939, Private Collection (deposited to the museum).

KOJIMA Zenzaburo (1893-1962), Japanese Western-Style painter born in Hakata is known for colorful and energetic paintings based on Japanese tradition and effort to create Japanese-style oil paintings instead of mimicking Western methods. This exhibition commemorating the 130th anniversary of his birth will highlight not only his great contribution and works during the prewar period as the charisma of the Dokuritsu Fine Arts Society established in 1930, but also a series of postwar landscape paintings and decorative still life paintings to reexamine the meaning of his paintings.
